Exciting Night.

NEWPORT NEWS, August 22 .- (Speclai.)- Enough shots were fired in Phoe bus to-night to kill fifty men, but, fortunately, no one was fatally wounded. The disturbance was probably precipitated by the shooting of a sailor yesterday atternoon by a saloonkeeper, which seemed to influence the sailors and soldiers to commit even Worse depredations than on Sunday night. This afternoon Sunday's riotous acts were renewed. There were rows all over the town between sallors and soldiers who, it is said, although fighting among themselves, had jointly spotted several saloons for demolition, declaring that the proprietors had used "knock-out drops" in order to rob them. At 4 o'clock this afternoon Sheriff Curtis and several other officers of Hampton went to Phoebus for the purpose of restoring order, and several members of the First Maryland Regiment were arrested and locked up.

THE NEWS SPREAD.

The news that their comrades had fallen Into the hands of the civil authorities spread among the volunteer soldiers still | place at the State or regimental renremaining in Phoebus, and soon reached others at Fort Monroe, and by 8 o'clock a large crowd of soldiers had gathered in Phoebus for the purpose of liberating SPECIAL CONSTABLES.

Sheriff Curtis swore in a dozen men as special constables, nearly all the members of the local fire company being among the number. The specials were well armed, and at Sheriff Curtis's command, proceeded to the jail. They had been there but a short time when the soldiers appeared. They were courteousty asked to leave, but declined to do so apless the prisoners were allowed to walk but. A one-sided parley ensued, the soldiers at times becoming wildly demon-

MADE A RUSH.

Then with a suddenness that scattered the citizens who had followed the Sheriff and his posse, the volunteers made a rush, fifing several shots as they did so. Sheriff Curtis and his men met the attack without flinching, and when it was seen that nothing else would do the order to fire was given. At this the soldiers fell back, and the citizens, seeing their opportunity, passed forward to a position which rendered an attack upon the jail Impossible without greater risk than even the angry volunteers cared to take.

After this skirmish, which was evidently a surprise to them, the soldiers left, but later they had a battle with negroes. A number of shots were fired, and Charles Smith, a young negro, was shot through the thigh. The soldiers assert that the negroes attacked them, and that they were compelled to defend themselves. None of the volunteers were injured.

HELP FROM FORT MONROE. Meantime help had been asked for from Fort Monroe, and a detail of 200 men was marched as rapidly as possible to Phoebus, arriving there at 10 o'clock, They were scattered throughout the town. and at 11 o'clock comparative order had been restored. None of the Sheriff's men were injured, but it is reported that six the place was closed, and but for the crowds on the streets Phoebus was a most desolate-looking place.

The fire-bell began clanging shortly after the row at the jail began, and that seemed to serve as a signal to the saloor men to close their places.

REV. W. W. MOORE, D. D.

Work in Baltimore of a Distinguished Presbyterian Divine. (Baltimore American.)

Rev. W. W. Moore, D. D., of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., preached yesterday at First Presbyterian church, corner of Madison and Park avenues. Next Sunday will probably conclude his Sunday work in Baltimore. During the months of July and August he has been laboring conjointly with the congregations of Brown-Memorial and First churches. This engagement will reach its termination next week, and then Dr. Moore will remove temporarily to another field. His presence here has proved of conspicuous reciprocal benefit. The two congregations which have been brought within the range of his teachings and influence are both warm in their laudations of his splendid achievements. His strong, yet charming, personality has wrought a marvel of good in the line of his mission here; and he has planted many a seed of religious thought which will blossom and fructify into Christian living.

Dr. Moore occupies the chair of Hebrew in the seminary to which he is attached. He is counted as a power of the first rank in his church, and he wields a wonderful influence by virtue of his prestige and ability. It was largely through his in-strumentality that the seminary was removed to its present site; and to him is due a large measure of credit for the successful progress which the institution has lately made. He is both talented and learned, and is gifted with the faculty of absorbing vast stores of knowledge, only to impart it afterwards to those who are his pupils or his hearers. His reputation as an instructor is second to none in his church; his power as a preacher has be come a matter of interstate fame. Hi presence here in Baltimore will react o the advantage of the seminary he represents. He has very successfully engaged the interest of local Presbyterians, and others, too, as for that, in the welfare of othems, too, as for that, in the welfare of the institution, which interest has mani-fested itself in substantial assistance. As a consequence, his faithful toiling during the months of summer will redound to the financial strengthening of his beloved school, a fact which affords him intense pleasure and stimulates his efforts with redoubled visor.

edoubled vigor. Or. Moore's sojourn here has left an in-delible impress. His personality is such that it could hardly be otherwise. He is a man of elegant presence, and that pres-ence is embellished with a most fascinating manner. Though gifted in almost at the qualities calculated to make him nan of attractions, his most notable traits his supreme modesty. Aside from his ability as an eloquent preacher, he has all the peculiar elemen necessary to make him pre-eminent as pastor should be ever feel disposed to en-ter that field. Though a learned theolo-gian and a devout adherent of hi-Church, he is broadened with a fine, in tellectual, liberal mind, which makes i impossible for him to be narrow or hype critical. To this is added a sympa nature, which is made to appear all the more delightful by reason of his keen ap more designtful by reason of his keen ap-preciation of humor and his merry readi-ness to join in a joke. This personal mag-netism, conjoined with his forcefulness in the pulpit, would necessarily life him to the front rank in his Church.

He is a North Carolinian by birth. He became early associated with the Union Seminary, and a large portion of his 4 years of life has been spent in that field.

He went to Smiley as the result of correspondence concerning the organization of the church, which had been carried on for several months. While in the pulpit he was shot through a window, his body being riddled with 107 buckshot and several small shot.
